

Walmart de México y Centroamérica will invest 1.3 billion dollars in its logistics network

- It will build and enlarge distribution centers in various parts of the country
- It will generate over 10,000 permanent jobs
- It will generate income for the construction, transportation, and agricultural and livestock industries

Mexico City, December 7, 2016. Walmart de México y Centroamérica will invest 1.3 billion dollars in strengthening and expanding its logistics network in Mexico. With this, the company will not only be in a better position to supply its more than 2,300 stores in the country, but also help Mexican families save even more money. A big portion of this investment will be made within the following three years to build distribution centers and enlarge existing ones, thus creating over 10,000 direct permanent jobs in the country.

Walmart de México y Centroamérica's President and CEO Guilherme Loureiro stated that "We're happy to announce today an investment throughout the Mexican Republic. We're about to define which states will be considered, based on geographical location, highway infrastructure, availability of services and competitiveness, among other variables. This investment will create jobs and benefit various industries, such as construction, transportation, and agricultural and livestock."

Walmart de México y Centroamérica has been strongly committed to Mexico for 58 years by creating jobs; getting Mexican families a wide variety of products and benefiting mainly those with limited economic resources; building efficiencies and productivity, and being one of the most recognized socially responsible companies in the country.

Loureiro added that "This investment in logistics stems from the earnings we have generated in the country and will help Mexico to become a more modern nation after we install state-of-the-art technology, offer specialized training, and significantly enhance our distribution channels to reach our stores faster and at lower costs. With this, we'll strengthen our mission of helping Mexican families save even more money.
